MONDAY AFTERNOON, OCTOBER 25.

THE Cuthbert Appeal urges the repeal of the seventy-five dollar exemption clause, because the revenue thus lost to the state must be regained by increasing the burthens of the medium or poorer class of whites.

THE Athens Georgian reminds the Gainesville Eagle that a jury of six thousand, three hundred and eighty-one free and independent voters "sat on" Mr Hill's case, on the fifth day of last May, and their verdict to a man was that he resided in the ninth district at the modern Athens.

MESSRS. MOODY and Sankey have been invited by the Pastors' Association, of Albany, New York, to visit that city. The pastors, in their letter of invitation, say: "We feel that we have special claims upon your labors, as our city is the centre of wide political as well as religious influences." That is just our case, exactly.

THE Sunday will be enlarged and improved when business justifies the expense. Let everybody extend it a helping hand.—[Columbus Enquirer.

If Sunday is to be enlarged, the number of church-goers should be correspondingly enlarged. We advise the Enquirer to do it by the majority rule, and thus adhere to the custom of the times.

THE Macon Telegraph rejoices in the fact that the state fair was a success both for itself and for the merchants of Macon, and then it adds: "Nor should we forget to say that a first class exhibition of agricultural products the present year was simply impossible from the repeated and prolonged droughts. The latter rain was withheld, under the inscrutable dispensations of Providence. But still the people have much to be thankful for."

THE grangers of Jefferson county propose to stop the traffic in seed cotton and pockets of lint, and this is the way they they propose to do it:

Resolved, that we the members of Jefferson grange, do pledge ourselves to a man neither to buy from, nor sell to, nor in any way support any one who shall in the future engage in this traffic without express consent from the proprietor, employer, or agent from whose place such seed cotton or unmerchantable packages of lint purport to come, and we further pledge ourselves to make unceasing war against this trade until it is effectually stopped.

THE Columbus Times very truthfully says that we have a vast territory rich in everything but people. If all the people in the United States were located in Texas or New York, the population would be no more dense than is that of France or Great Britain in proportion to the area occupied. This sparsity of population is peculiarly felt in the south. All the agricultural labor in Georgia might be concentrated in one county, and the agricultural population would not be as dense as it is in Belgium. Until we secure more people, we will not make progress in agricultural profit and economy. No part of the United States offers a better field for the immigrant to speedily acquire a competency, than does the state of Georgia.

STILL another case of true inwardness from East Tennessee. The Holston conference is considering the case of Rev. G. M. Massey. The Knoxville Press and Herald furnishes the following particulars of the alleged offense:

The charge as particularized was that Mr. Massey, in company with a married lady and a young unmarried woman, walked together to a house where Mr. M performed a marriage ceremony. Returning from the house, the road being narrow and the night dark, the young lady was persuaded to go ahead so that her white dress would be a guide to the feet and a lamp to the path of Mr. Massey and the married lady. Then it was that Mr. M., as charged, allowed his true inwardness to overcome his piety and kissed the married lady with repeated embrace. The lady was surprised and chagrined, but made no outcry. On reaching home, however, she informed her husband, who complained to the presiding elder. The result of the trial will be made known to the conference before the adjournment.

The Magazines.

The November number of Scribner contains the first seven chapters of Bret Harte's first novel, "Gabriel Conroy." It is to run for twelve months. The scene of the story is in the land that Mr. Harte has often described, and the opening chapters are perhaps as powerful as anything he ever wrote. We have only space to mention one other admirable article in this superb magazine, a paper on "India and i's Native Princes."

St. Nicholas, from the same publishers, contains a number of delightful stories for the little folks, and big folks can read them too, with pleasure and profit. The best writers in the country are among St. Nicholas' corps of contributors. The funny illustrations, and the jolly bits of poetry add to the interest of the number. Buy it for the little folks. It will surely please them.

The Galaxy for November contains a very readable review entitled "The London Marriage Market." Fashionable London society is dissected and all the points of the English matrimonial system analyzed. Miss Warner's sketch of Nannette Schiller deserves mention amongst the many fine papers that make up the number. There is also enough of lighter reading to please all tastes. "The Battle of Chickamauga" should give the number a local sale.

Lippincott's opens with "Up the Thames," a profusely illustrated article. Sidney Lanier contributes an article on "St. Augustine in April," which is also illustrated. "Qualla" describes the home of some Indians in North Carolina, but we cannot begin to enumerate the series of articles that compose the clever number before us.

Registered Voters.

NEW YORK, October 24.—The number of voters registered in this city is 144,-934.

After the Gamblers.

LOUISVILLE, October 24.—The gamblers of this city have all indicted and will probably be completely routed.

SATURDAY'S KILLING.

The Coroner's Inquest and Arrest of Hughes and Hollifield.

Sunday morning at 9 o'clock Coroner Kile, with a jury of inquest, visited the house of the late John Wilmoth, about one mile southeast of the city.

An investigation was then had into the causes leading to Wilmoth's death. His brother Stephen gave his testimony before the jury, detailing the circumstances of the tragedy as he remembered them.

Dr. W. R. D. Thompson made the postmortem examination.

The jury rendered a verdict of death from wounds inflicted by Hughes and Hollifield.

ARREST OF THE ACCUSED MEN.

Both Hughes and Hollifield were prepared to give themselves in charge Sunday morning, when they came to town. They were arrested and locked up in the county jail to await further investigations. Hughes confesses that he did the cutting, but in self-defence.

THE REDEMPTION OF NATIONAL BANK NOTES.

Carruth Dead After Seven Months Waiting.

Opening of the Moody and Sankey Revivals.

General News From All Parts.

U. S. Treasurer's Report.

WASHINGTON, October 24.—In is understood that among the prominent features of the forthcoming report of the treasurer of the United States, is the following recommendation affecting the redemption of national bank notes will be made:

1. That the national bank redemption agency be made a separate bureau in the office of the secretary of the treasury, under the charge of a superintendent, who shall give bond for the faithful performance of his duties.

2. That the five per cent. redemption fund shall be kept in the treasury, but subject to the check of the superintendent; and that they be payable in currency or drafts on New York, Boston, Chicago, St. Louis or any other sub treasury.

3. That banks or others sending national bank notes for redemption be required to prepay the express charges to Washington, and that for all other expenses of the agency national banks be allowed to deduct from their next semi-annual return of tax upon circulation the amount of any assessment that may be made, as also in their next return the amount of the assessment heretofore made.

Suspension.

NEW YORK, October 25.—Wm. Maller & Sons, sugar refiners, made an assignment Saturday. The same day an attachment was granted against their property, in favor of Jules, Sage & Co., for $15,577.76.

End of the Vineland Tragedy.

VINELAND, N. J., October 25,—Wm. Carruth, shot by Landis on March 19th, died here this morning.

Subsequent to the shooting of Carruth, Landis was taken into custody and taken to Bridgeton jail, where he was up to within about three months ago, when arrangements were made for his release under bail—the amount being $50,000. Since his release, some friends of Landis have been working to bring about a settlement between them. Mr. Landis and his attorneys having visited Carruth at Clinton, N. Y., where he had gone for his health, to try and make the necessary arrangements. Landis offered him $5,-000 and about 380 acres of land, which was indignantly refused by Carruth. Since his return from his visit with his relatives at Clinton, Carruth has been much troubled in regard to his pecuniary affairs, and the probable condition of his family in case of his death. He thought seriously at one time of instituting a civil suit for damages, he being of a firm opinion that Landis would not settle unless compelled to do so. A third attempt to settle with Carruth at Clinton having failed, some of Landis' mutual friends have been endeavoring to bring about a settlement since his return from the north, and had progressed so far that only a few days since, the sum of $12,500 in cash, and securities had been agreed upon, and the papers only awaited the signature of Londas, but he insisted that Carruth should leave the state before the settlement was perfected. Carruth has been failing ever since his return from the north, and has been unable to attend to any business. His mind is constantly excited in regard to a settlement up, within a week or ten days. It was thought that if his mind was relieved of the burden he would yet recover. At daybreak he would anxiously enquire, "Can you keep me till night, so that we can fix those papers;" and at night "you must keep me till morning, so we can settle that matter," his friends not letting him know the settlement could be brought about only by his removal from the state. He has been confined to his bed for some days back. Last evening he eat his supper in a reclining position, feeling to all appearances as he had been some days past, and about three or four hours after he was taken with a convulsion, followed by a violent fit of vomiting, after which he sank into a stupor from which he was relieved by death, about three o'clock this morning. Landis was delivered by his bondsmen to the authorities, who arrested him and took him to Bridgeton.

Drs. Malcolm, Macfarlan and Gross, from Philadelphia, have been sent for to hold post mortem examination to-morrow, and on Tuesday Carruth's body will be taken to Clinton, Oneida county, New York, for interment.

Moody and Sankey.

NEW YORK, October 24.—The first of the Moody and Sankey revivals was held at the Brooklyn rink this morning. The building was crowded--fully ten thousand people being present.

Rev. Dr. Buddington opened with prayer, and after singing by Sankey, Moody delivered a long discourse.

Among those on the platform were Rev. Drs. Cuyler, Duryea, Prime, Buddington, Dewitt Talmadge and George Stewart, Philadelphia. In the afternoon the rink was again packed; at least five thousand people being unable to gain admittance.

After services it was announced that there would be revival meetings at the rink every evening during the week except Saturday.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.--Moody and Sankey opened prayer meeting at Dr. Talmage's church this morning at eight o'clock; 5,000 present.

Death of a Congressman.

BURLINGTON, VT., October 25.—Hon. David P. Noyes is dead, aged 86.

Damaged at Sea.

HALIFAX, October 25.—The Neponset, from Wilmington, N. C., with a cargo of naval stores, was towed into St. George, Bermuda, having encountered a gale on the 10th, strained and leaking badly; threw overboard 300 barrels.

Paper Mill Burnt.

GETTYSBURG, PA., October 25.—Conowaga paper mills, six miles north of here, were burned Saturday night; loss, $35,000; insurance, $16,500; work of an incendiary.

Poisoned by Mistake.

MACON, MO., October 25.—The mixture which killed Dr. Sherman and Samuel Parker, was prussic acid and whisky, taken by mistake.

The King of Bavaria and Bismarck.

MUNICH, October 25.—King Louis of Bavaria has issued his letter, expressing confidence in the ministry, and ordered it to be placarded throughout the whole kingdom.

It is reported again that Bismarck contemplates resignation in consequence of ill health.

Found Guilty.

ST. LOUIS, October 25.—The jury found Col. Joyce guilty on four counts of the indictment--penalty in each indictment. Penitentiary for not less than six months, and fine of not less than one thousand dollars, and forever debarred holding federal office. A motion was made for a new trial.

Col. Joyce was placed in custody of a United States marshal, and has the freedom of the city.

Funeral of General Pickett.

RICHMOND, October 24.—The funeral obsequies of Gen. George Picket, took place this afternoon, and the demonstration was indeed worthy of the gallant soldier. The entire populace of Richmond, together with thousands of visitors from other points were out en masse. The streets along which the procession moved, were in many cases so crowded with spectators, that the movements of the line were greatly impeded. Many private houses were tastefully draped in mourning and flags at diferent points were half-masted. The regiment was composed of the first regiment, of Virginia, as escort, the corps of cadets from the Virginia institute, Monticello guards from Charlottesville, Attincks guards, colored, Virginia Grays, colored, Old first Virginia regiment, veterans of the army of northern Virginia, Richmond and Petersburg commanderies, Knights Templar, state and city executive officers, relative and friends of the deceased and many prominent Virginians in carriages, together with a long cortege of vehicles with private citizens. the entire line being nearly a mile and a half in length. The remains were conveyed to the Holly wood cemetery, where they were interred with appropriate ceremonies. It is estimated that not less than 40,000 people witnessed the procession and that there were about 50,000 in the line.

The Question of Fish.

WASHINGTON, 25th.—The establishment of U. S. fish commission under the direction of Livingston Stone on the McCloud river, in California, for securing the eggs of California salmon for introduction into the eastern waters, and which has just been closed for the season, it has been extremely successful in its objects. No less than 9,000,000, of eggs having been obtained, the greater part of these have already been shipped to the fish commissioners of the various states, to be by them hatched out and planted in appropriate waters. Provision has been made for a supply to the waters of every state. Large numbers have been sent to Texas to be hatched out under the direction of the commissioners.

Dr. Lindermen, the director of the mint, is hopeful of future production of gold and silver from his late observations. He thinks the sum total next year will be 100,000,000, of which amount the Comstock lode will furnish one half.

Balloon on Fire.

OWENSBURG, KY., October 24.—A balloon, when several hundred feet high, caught fire. Prof. Atchinson was precipitated to the earth. His recovery is doubtful.

THE LAST OF A DESPERADO.

A Major in the U. S. Army Found to be at the Head of a Band of Horse Thieves—Shot Down in His Tracks.

Denver (Col.) Tribune.

The complications surrounding the Pocahontas mine, situated at Rosita, not far from Canon City, have finally resulted in a fierce and fatal conflict, by which one life has been sacrificed, if not more. The man killed was the notorious Major Graham, who was well known in Denver as one of the most dangerous of daring desperadoes.

The Major was a native of New York, and in the early part of the war became a conspicuous partisan commander of the union forces in North Carolina. He was a perfect athlete, a splendid horseman, an accurate shot, and as daring and unscrupulous as any man who ever drew a sabre. For his services he was appointed, at the close of the war, a first lieutenant in the regular army, and assigned to duty in the west. By the services he rendered against the Indians aided by more or less political influence, Lieut. Graham soon became a full-blown Major, and as such became a special favorite at Fort Leavenworth and in the city of that name. While at this post he paid his addresses to one of the most attractive ladies of Leavenworth, and it was only by an accident that the marriage was not consummated.

The night previous to the day on which the ceremony was to take place, the commanding officer at Fort Leavenworth received direct instructions from the war department to place Major Graham in irons, and keep him in solitary confinement till further orders. Although the order created an immense surprise at the fort, it was literally obeyed, and Major Graham found himself in a felon's cell instead of occupying as he had hoped, a bridal couch. A court martial, however, subsequently explained what seemed at the time to be inexplicable. The evidence before the court established the fact that Major Graham, while wearing the honorable uniform of a United States officer, had been the secret head of a band of horse thieves in Kansas: had also, while in Utah, been in league with the lowest class of gamblers and thieves; and that he had systematically stolen and sold horses from the stables of the government. The courtmartial sentenced the major to be dishonorably dismissed from the service, to be debarred from ever holding any office of honor or trust under the government, and to serve a term of ten years in a military prison. Through some unknown influence this sentence was indorsed only so far as it related to the dismissal of the major from the service.

As soon as he was in possession of a qualified freedom, the major started for Denver, and here became, as of yore, the associate of evil and dangerous classes His first attempt at public robbery was made on Paymaster Brooks, at River Bend. For this offense he was tried and sentenced to two years to the penitentiary. Before his term expired he organized an escape which proved partially successful. We say partial because and his associates made good their escape, but they were all subsquently captured, one of them being killed and the major himself severely wounded. He served out the rest of his term, and when released went to Rosita, where he opened a whisky-den. It was probably here that he arranged, with others, the jumping of the Pocahontas mine. The "jumpers" kept possession until day before yesterday, when all the miners in the neighborhood resolved on clearing the mine of its fraudulent possessors. How this was done the dispatches tell. The Major was caught on his way to Rosita. On being halted he turned to run, but fell dead in his tracks, pierced by some twenty-five balls. Graham's partner, a man named Boyd, was arrested shortly afterwards, and is likely hung before this. The rest of the "jumpers" have been arrested, but as to what disposition will be made of them we have as yet no means of knowing.

AN agreement has been entered into by Salvador, Guatamala and Nicaragua to consolidate and form one government. It is possible that Costa Rica and Honduras will join the pact.

THE work of the American colonization society progresses very quietly, but is still progressing. Over 3,000 people have been sent to Liberia since the close of 1874, and another large delegation will be dispatched in November.

THE candidates before the legislature of Iowa, just elected, for United States senator, vice Wright, who is not a candidate, are: Ex-Senator Harlan, Gen. W. Belknap, George W. McCrary, Hiram Price, and Samuel J. Kirkwood, governor-elect.

MANY of the country republican papers of Ohio are out in favor of Gov. Hayes for president, and Gen. Woodford of New York for vice president. Rather thin material to plaster the union with.—[Cleveland Plaindealer (dem).

IN the appointment of Mr. Chandler, the Philadelphia Evening Telegraph recognizes another slight to Pennsylvania, and adds that "taking all the circumstances into consideration, the appointment is about as bad and unfortunate as could well have been made."

GENERAL SOL. MEREDITH, one of the most prominent of the Indiana generals during the war, died at his residence near Cambridge City, Indiana, yesterday, from cancer of the stomach, caused by his being crushed beneath a horse at the battle at Gainesville. After the war Gen. Meredith became a successful stock breeder.

BAYARD sees his chance. He is walking right into the southern field. Tilden may hold New York, but that's about all he can get. Delaware has more popularity with the democratic masses than New York, throughout the country, unless Wall street comes down heavily with money.—Wilmington (Del.) Commercial, rep

THE mikado of Japan is one of the busiest sovereigns of the period. He takes a hand in the court councils; attends naval, military, and educational displays, and dignifies the casting of a cannon or the trial of a torpedo boat with his royal presence. He sports a heavy mustache and imperial, and stands, unbooted, five feet seven inches.

R. T. DAVIS, eldest son of the late Senator Garrett Davis, and one of the most prominent members of the Bourbon county bar, was found dead in his bed yesterday at Paris, Ky. His death is supposed to have been caused by an overdose of chloral, which he had been in the habit of using as an anodyne for pain. Mr. Davis was president of the Northern Bank of Kentucky.

THE Chicago Tribune learns that Commodore Garrison has been negotiating for the possession of the New York World, with the intention of making it a greenback organ, and putting in Stilson Hutchins, of St. Louis, as editor. Mr. Marble, it is understood, wants $700,000; the commodore, as latest accounts, thought, $300,000 about the correct figure.

EX-COMMISSIONER DOUGLASS' accounts as commissioner of internal revenue for five years were adjusted last week, and after dealings amounting to $500,000,000, extending over that length of time, his accounts were found to exactly balance, not being even one cent in error. This is something very unusual.

JUDGE EDMUNDS, the city postmaster and secretary of the republican national committee, is quoted as saying that Chandler's appointment means danger to all the lukewarm radical officeholders under him, and that those fellows who refused to contribute when the hat was passed around will stand a fair chance to have their heads taken off. This worthy pair are from the same state, and are great cronies.

AN account of a Georgia lynching in THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION, says the coroner held a jury, and found that "deceased came to his death from causes unknown," the reporter adding that there were "no bruises upon the body, except that the neck was broke." That reminds one of the California verdict that a certain obnoxious Mexican had been "found in the brush and buried according to Hoyle."—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

MR. JEFFERSON DAVIS, in a letter to Gov. Kemper of Virginia, expressing his inability, to be present at the dedication of the statue of Stonewall Jackson, says: "The admiration and affectionate remembrance with which I regard our departed hero would make it particularly gratifying in uniting with you in the manifestation of the respect which all who knew him must feel for that unwavering patriot and distinguished soldier."

GENERAL MAHONE has sailed for England for the purpose of conferring with the consolidated mortgage creditors of the Atlantic Mississippi and Ohio railroad, a line which extends from Norfolk, Va., to Bristol, Tenn. The London News refers to a letter from that gentleman, stating that the company is not prepared to pay more than half the interest which matured on the consolidated mortgage on the 1st inst., attributing the default to the results of the panic, and counseling moderation and forbearance at the hands of the bondholders.

THE president, like John Gilpin, has a frugal mind and begets the money's worth out of his presents. He sold the Turkish carpet presented to him by the sultan, to A. T. Stewart. The house the people gave him he sold to Sayles Bowen, whom he went back on, when he found he could get more from General Sherman. The Russian horse presented him by the czar, he sold for $500. The mare presented him when he was commissioned colonel of the 21st Illinois Infantry, he sold for $55, and he has sold Morton twice, once on the inflation question, and at the request of the Wall street bankers, and the last time on the protection-to-loyal-men question.

A GREATER part of the administration journals have swallowed without a grimace all the disparaging things they said of Mr. Chandler a few months ago, and are now lauding his "rugged honesty" and "unswerving patriotism." Only a few of them have had the courage to protest against the disgraceful choice, and among these is the Rochester Democrat and Chronicle, which says: "The country needed and expected a peer of Messrs. Bristow, Pierrepont, and Jewell—and it receives Zach Chandler. It is but a few months ago since he, repudiated by a portion of the best republicans of Michigan, was remanded to the shades of private life; and here he is, by the favor of the president, a member of the cabinet. The effects of this mistake of the executive upon the country and the republican party, we do not care to forecast. Sufficient is it to say that it will not be an inspiration."

THE VOTE OF OHIO.

It is not pleasant to contemplate a field on which we met the enemy and were threshed out, but there are two or three points in the Ohio election that should not be misunderstood; and we propose to briefly state those points this morning, in order that we may decently and rightly dismiss the campaign in which William did not, to our great regret, rise up. Not that we believe he is permanently down; his tenacious political life scarcely admits of such a supposition, and our children perhaps, will hear the echoes of his wonderful voice after a lapse of another forty years. He certainly has no reason to be gloomy over his vote in the late election.

The total vote was enormous. In 1873 the total vote was 448,878; in 1871 it was 460,626. These were both gubernatorial elections. And yet the vote of 1875 was 591,077! or sixty-one thousand more than were ever cast in Ohio previous to this year. It exceeded all calculations—at least all made by honest men. Was it an honest vote? The best-informed people of Ohio think it was not. It is a vote of more than one to four of the population. Such a proportion is unknown in any other part of the country. Such a proportion of honest voters is simply an impossibility. The gains were chiefly in Cleveland and Toledo, both of which cities are on the border; Canada and the adjacent states offered safety to ballot box stuffers in a few hours. Last year the county in which Cleveland is situated gave 800 democratic majority; this year it gave Hayes 6,375 majority.

And yet Allen actually gained votes in forty-nine interior counties of the state. The highest democratic vote ever before polled in the state was in 1872, when it reached 252,000. That was a presidential election. This year in a state fight Gov. Allen received 292,000 votes. He has gained seventy-eight thousand votes since his election two years ago. He received thirteen thousand more votes than Grant did in 1873 when he beat Horace Greeley by nearly forty thousand majority, and he received a great many more honest votes than any republican candidate for governor in Ohio, including Hayes, ever did.

One other little query and we are through with Ohio for the present. Does a gain of 78,000 votes in two years show that the bullionists are gaining ground in Ohio? In the light of the full facts does it look as if the people, the real voters, were thirsting for speedy resumption and an extension of the national bank monoply? We think not. The people of Ohio think not. The latter regard the apparent defeat as a splendid victory under the circumstances. If the supreme efforts of the moneyed interests cannot produce better results when concentrated in one state, they certainly cannot control the country when spread over all the states, as they must be in a presidential contest.

THE STATE FAIR.

Our readers have had pretty full daily accounts by letter and telegram of the Georgia State Fair. As we have stated before, the attendance was not so large as at the two previous fairs, which is attributable in great measure to the hard ness of the times. Still on several days of the fair there was a very gratifying attendance, and from the interview with Gen. Colquitt elsewhere published, it will appear that it was financially successful. The General claims that after all expenses are paid, there will be something left in the treasury. This is certainly a most praiseworthy achievement and will redound to the greater popularity of President Colquitt. He stoutly defends the course of the management in excluding horse racing and all gambling appendages usual at state expositions, and makes the point that the purses and consequent expenses for horse racing, has a great deal to do with the financial failures of our agricultural fairs. The interview is exceedingly interesting, and we commend it to the perusal of our readers. It is plain spoken, and discusses the criticisms upon the management of the fair intelligently and squarely. If General Colquit has demonstrated that State Fairs can be run successfully for a purely agricultural schedule, he will add a proud feather to his cap and receive the heartiest encomiums.

DR. LITTLE'S PARTY.

We are glad to state that Dr. Little, the state geologist, has secured the services of another competent civil engineer to accompany the Okefenokee expedition. His party now consists, besides himself, of Prof. C. A. Locke and M. T. Singleton, civil engineers, and R. H. Loughridge, assistant geologist. These gentlemen, with their wagon, started from Macon yesterday for the general rendezvous. Dr. Little himself will leave Atlanta, with other members of THE CONSTITUTION party, next week.

THE New York Herald arrives at the following conclusions after a careful review of the industrious but quiet personal canvass that is going on beneath the surface of politics for the speakership:

Judging from present indications the real choice will lie between Mr. Kerr and Mr. Randall, with a preponderance of chances in favor of Mr. Kerr. Mr. Wood and Mr. Cox weaken each other by being from the same state. Neither will be supported by the unanimous democratic delegation from his own state—an advantage possessed both by Mr. Kerr and Mr. Randall. It is for the interest of Governor Tilden that the honor be not conferred on New York, since it would be an impediment to taking the presidential candidate from this state. Governor Tilden's friends desire that the speakership be given to the west, and now that Mr. Sayler is out of the question their influence will be given to Mr. Kerr. But, quite apart from Governor Tilden's wishes and aspirations, Mr. Kerr's election to the speakership would be for the advantage of the party. Whether Governor Tilden shall be nominated for the presidency or not, the reform issue is the only one on which the democratic party can win, and the sincerity of its devotion to reform would be attested by electing as speaker a man whose honesty is as little open to question as that of Governor Tilden himself. There is no better practical method of committing the party to reform than by conferring the first national honor sedurcly in its gift on Micheal C. Kerr.

THE government is yearly a gainer by the disappearance of small notes and currency. Take the three- and five-cent issues of fractional currency, for example. The issue of these notes ceased in April, 1869, at which time there had been issued $602,000 of the former, and $5,700,000 of the latter. Although over six years have elapsed there are still outstanding $92,000 in three-cent notes, and over $1,870,000 of the five cent issue.

THE fourth congressional district of Tennessee first elected John W. Head, who only lived a few weeks after his election. Samuel M. Fite was chosen to fill the vacancy, and now he is dead. Neither occupied the seat to which he was elected. The district should now take Ed. Golladay, who has more stomach than brains, and will surely live long enough to take his seat and cast a vote for the speakership.

THE Newnan Fair commences to-day. It promises to be a fine success. A large number will go down from Atlants, and we feel confident that all will be repaid for the visit. See advertisement.

TEXAS IN LUCK.

A recent recovery of a lot of bonds has just benefited the schools of Texas to the extent of three hundred thousand dollars. They originally came to the state from the federal government as an indemnity for the sale of the Santa Fe territory. They were United States bonds—three hundred in number, each being good for one thousand dollars. Soon after the state received them she set them aside as a school fund. They were devoted to the support of the public school system, as far as they would go.

The war came on, with all its imperative requirements. The bonds in question were taken by the military board of 1862, which caused them to be sent to Europe for sale, the proceeds to go towards supplying the Texan regiments in the confederate army. One hundred and forty-nine of the bonds were sold, the money being deposited in a Manchester bank; but before any considerable part of it could be drawn out for army supplies, an injunction tied it up on the ground that the United States would pay neither principal nor interest on the bonds. The federal power had got word of the transaction.

After peace was restored a tangle of negotiations and suits for the recovery of the bonds ensued. All of the carpet-baggers in force took a hand at it. But they remained beyond their reach. A contract was made at one time with some New York lawyers to give eighty per cent. of the bonds in case they could recover them. They could not, but Gov. Coke had no difficulty, through a Brenham law firm, in securing them, and last week the school fund was credited with three hundred thousand dollars, every cent of which was realized from the sale of the strayed indemnity bonds. All the suits in connection with them were settled, and the whole matter closed up for a fee of twelve per cent.

These facts show the difference between a government by the people for the people, and a government conducted by carpetbaggers and plunderers for their own aggrandizement.

WE have seen several of Mrs. Kennedy's neighbors, all of whom say she is a woman of undoubted veracity and virtue and stands as high in the community as any lady. We say this much in behalf of this poor, injured and insulted lady, and hope it may have the effect to correct the erroneous impressions of some. We love our women, and we shall always be found protecting them and their character, let it cost what it may.—Griffin News and Farmer.

UTICA is the paradise of the office-seeker. At present it is the home of two United States senators, and a judge in the district, the circuit and the supreme courts of the United States. Old pomposity, who gets himself up for the galleries, lives there, and he is credited with the three judicial appointments we have named.

THE Macon Telegraph states that a few old Confederate soldiers, learning that Col. H. D. Capers was about returning to his old home, Columbia, South Carolina, presented to him through Gen. Cook an elegant pen with appropriate inscription.

Miss Lollipop's Party.

Dora Loll pop was a pretty girl, and she knew it. Her parents were of the same opinion; likewise her elder brother Bob, a recent graduate from Sculling college, who flattered himself on being a judge of beauty, as well as the best rower in his class. Robert Lollpop, Sr., was a confectioner by trade, and the proceeds of his thriving business had enabled him to give both of his children a first-class education, Dora having just returned from a boarding-school, where she became fully proficient in every branch of useful and useless knowledge. Her birthday was approaching for the eighteenth time, and, as this anniversary grew more important with each succeeding year, the happy event was to be celebrated on this occasion with more than the usual eclat.

Preparations were already at a good stage of advancement in the kitchen, while Dora and her mother were closeted in the "library" (so called by the facetious Dora, because the room contained a desk and a book case without books), busily engaged in writing invitations, and indulging in debates on the weighty question, "To snub or not to snub" those who might fail to do honor and credit to the entertainment.

"We must invite the schoolma'am for Bob's sake," said Mrs. Lollipop, a good-natured matron, "fair, fat and forty," and very fond of her son.

"Why, mamma?"

"Well, to give him a chance to show his learning in case they should enter into a discussion on some important topic of the day."

"Very well; Miss Prism's name is down. Who next?"

"You know Miss Clayton is in town, on a visit to the Snifkins?"

"Yes. I suppose we must invite her, out of compliment to the former mistress of this establishment. But if this is to be a recherche reunion of old maids, I decline the honor of claiming it as my birthday party. We have four on the list now; quantum sufficit?"

The list completed, Mrs. L. was about to suggest another name, but concluded to keep her own counsel; and, when Deacon Jones called the next day, to ask why Bob had not attended the lecture on the previous evening, his bachelor ears rejoiced in the music of a verbal invitation, "Just to keep the giddy young people under proper restraint, you know," urged the amiable Mrs. Lollipot; and thus his scruples were overcome.

The eventful evening came at last, and with it the elite of Spinstersville, and several guests from New York, the most important of whom was the gay and fascinating Mr. Fitz Hughes, Dora's favorite admirer. All went merry as a marriage bell, till Deacon Jones joined the company at the supper-table. He apologized for his tardiness by explaining how he was called upon to console a poor widow whose children were sick with the measles. The majority of appetites being appeased by this time, the deacon was left alone with the hostess to enjoy the remainder of all that had been provided to regale the "inner man." It is said that most women are match-makers by nature—perhaps for the reason that "misery loves company," for the moment a fair one is safely caught in matrimonial meshes she tries her best to induce others to put their heads into a similar noose, and Mrs. Lollipop was no exception to the rule.

"I am glad you came, Mr. Jones," she said, by way of introducing the subject of her thoughts. "I began to fear that Miss Prism would be disappointed tonight."

Miss Prism was a tall lady of thirty-five or thereabouts, very precise and stately in her deportment, who took a sensible view of old maidenhood, being able and willing to support herself by teaching, hence she seemed to stimulate extreme youth, and seldom mingled in the sports of young people for fear of compromising her dignity. "Just the wife for Deacon Jones," remarked Mrs. Lollipop to herself. However, we will not repeat her audible remarks to her belated guest, but follow them to the parlor, where the young people had decided upon a new plan for amusement, since it was supposed that dancing would not accord with the deacon's taste, and they wished to please all. A game of forfeits had been suggested by Bob, and soon the platter was spinning at a lively rate on the carpet. Now, Bob was a rare fellow for sport, and improved every occasion that presented itself for fun. Like his favorite little Henry Bourcer, who nearly worried the life out of poor Verdant Green, he had distinguished himself at college chiefly for his exploits in mischief, and, like him, invested a certain sum of his pocket-money in the purchase of two terriers, whom he named Hnz and Buz, out of respect to the memory of his predecessor. As his great-aunt Tabitha—a resident of Lollipop Cottage—rejoiced in the possession of a black cat, who always got her feline back up at sight of them, she vetoed Bob's attempt to establish them as members of the household; so poor Huz and Buz had to content themselves in a kennel at the end of the yard, where they serenaded the party with dismal music.

Miss Prism was seated at the window, in quiet conversation with Miss Clayton when Bob approached and addressed them:

"Would you join us in the game, ladies? The exercise will do you good, Miss Prism, after your close confinement in the school room."

But she declined with smiling thanks, and as he receded he concocted a scheme "to make her lively for once in her life," as he whispered confidentially to himself. While the forfeits were being sold, his lips once happened to be very close to the right ear of the "seller," and shortly after Miss Prism's name was mentioned, though she was still at the window, taking no part in the play.

"Heavy, heavy hangs over your head"—

"Fine or superfine?"

"Superfine. What must the owner do to redeem it?"

"Well—let me think. She must go around among the gentlemen trying to bark like a dog, and the first man who laughs at her attempt must measure three yards of ribbon with her, or she will never regain her property."

It was a locket, and as no one came forward to claim it, all eyes were turned toward Miss Prism, who seemed to have a strange sensation about her throat, whence the locket had been abstracted by Bob. It contained a likeness of the gentleman to whom she was engaged many years ago, but who had gone away and died in foreign climes, and she valued his gift as a sacred treasure.

On surmising the truth, her eyes sought the spot where Bob stood an instant before, but he was non est, having gone for Huz and Buz, two important accessories to his scheme of mischief.

Poor Miss Prism looked around among the gentlemen, and saw that each had already a smile upon his countenance, with one exception. Deacon Jones always appeared as if butter would not melt in his mouth. Her hopes revived as she met his solemn gaze, and her appealing glance spoke plainly as words: "I don't like this nonsense. Smile just a little, and restore my locket without much kissing." But his face seemed to grow a yard longer for every inch she drew nearer, till something barked. Could so strange a sound issue from a lady's mouth? Everybody laughed except Mr. Fitz Hughes, who was shocked at such "horrid country proceedings." Even the deacon's countenance shortened somewhat, but not enough for a smile. At this juncture Bob returned with his pets. He comprehended the situation in a twinkling, and at a sign from him Huz and Buz hastened to take a position behind the schoolmistress, where they vied with each other in barking the loudest. The room was convulsed even to the pictures on the wall. Deacon Jones struggled hard with the mysterious influence of Comus, but he yielded at last and laughed heartily.

There being no alternative, the two consented to measure three yarns of ribbon. Miss Prism submitted quietly to the first, winced at the second, and positively refused to define the dimensions of the third. The trial had proved too much for her, and she had determined to give it up. Not so with the deacon; he insisted on fair play now it was begun. She sought refuge in flight toward the back porch, whither he followed, and found her in a tub of maple sugar, placed there by Aunt Tabitha, who always insisted on making it herself according to her own approved method. It had cooled to a certain extent. Huz and Buz, being curious as to the exact degree, jumped in to ascertain, and it was no easy matter to extricate the sweets from the sweet, being a case of "linked sweetness long drawn out." However, to the credit of the deacon be it said, before the lady had regained a foothold on the porch, that last yard of ribbon was fairly measured. (Let us here observe, en parenthesis, that shortly after this event an article appeared in the "Spinsterville Wideawake," congratulating a certain Mr Jones and Miss Prism on their marriage.) As the wee sma' hours were approaching, the party broke up, and the non-residents of Spinsterville were shown to their respective rooms; all but Mr. Fitz Hughes, who remained in the parlor, bent on a final interview with Dora, to whom he had plighted his troth.

"Good night, and good riddance," added Bob, after closing the front door upon "His Fancy Highness."

"It is all over, and I hope mamma is satisfied with the result," said Dora, mournfully. "Two of her old maids—Miss Clayton and Miss Prism—gained a lover each by attending my birthday party, and I lost mine in consequence."

"Give us your hand on that, sis, and thank me for your lucky escape. You are too good for that simpleton; besides, I have higher views for you than Searles—you know—a splendid fellow, rich, handsome and all that, fell in love with you on commencement day. He will be back from Europe in a month, and—"

"Bob, do stop tossing now, and give me your candid opinion of our party."

"Can't do it, sis; my opinions are averse to the sugar-dipping business."

"Yes, I know you mean to be a doctor; but even then your pills must be 'sugar-dipped' before your patients will take them. Now, answer my question."

"Well, for a country gathering, I think it passed off nicely."

"Just what he said, only he used a different mode of expression."

"How?"

"Such pastimes may still seem delightful to country bumpkins, but in refined society they are obsolete!"

"Good for you, sir. I see you are in a fair way to recover. Hand us your wrist; pulse all right; no symptoms of a broken heart. Go to bed now, with the wish that every old maid in Spinsterville may be married before your next birthday party, and your cure is certain."

"Thanks, 'Doctor' Lollipop; your advice shall be followed to the letter."

An hour later Dora was dreaming of the handsome Tom Searles. Alas for human expectations, Miss Lollipop was destined never to enjoy another birthday party in Spinsterville; but Mrs. Dora Searles kept up the anniversary with becoming spirit in Washington for many years after the event related above.

LOU DORLEE.

Executive Department Notes.

Geo. W. Chitty, notary public and ex-officio justice of the peace, 904th district of Echols county, "humbly submitted" his resignation, on account of his removal to Lowndes county.

The governor yesterday offered a reward of $150 for the capture and conviction of the murderer of Thomas Griffin, in Screven county, October 1st.

A New Paper.

CARSON, KANSAS, Oct. 25.—The first number of a new paper called the Indian Progress, published by Boudinot and Harris, appeared at Muscogee, Creek nation, yesterday. It reported that Gen. Shanks the Indian commissioner and M. P. Roberts have procured a charter from the Creek Council to publish an international paper at Muscogee, and that they also obtained an order from the council directing a suppression of the Progress, and the removal of the printing material and building within ten days outside of the limits of the creek nation, with a penalty of confiscation for failing to do. Boudinot and Harris have appealed to the United States for protection, with a view of ascertaining whether a newspaper can be suppressed, or a censorship exercised over its columns.

Drowned.

ST. LOUIS, October 24.—Steven Lewis, fisherman and ferryman, in taking a load of colored people across the Mississippi, the skiff was overloaded and capsized. All but two were drowned. Lewis, in attempting to save two women, drowned himself.

Dedication.

BALTIMORE, October 25.—The new city hall, a beautiful marble structure, covering a square, was dedicated with imposing ceremonies. It cost two and a half millions.

Judge Spencer's Report.

NEW YORK, October 25.—The report of ex-Judge Spencer, referee in the Erie railway matter, approving receiver Jewett's report, was submitted to Judge Lawrence in the supreme court chambers to-day. The court refused to confirm it, and sent it back to the referee to have one or two matters in it argued before the referee.

Thirty Thousand Cigars Detained.

WASHINGTON, October 25.—Thirty thousand cigars were detained, for being improperly branded, but will be released upon showing no intention to defraud and being properly branded.

The Richmond Press.

RICHMOND, October 25.—Moses P. Handy and Charles J. Jones, late of the editorial staff of the New York Tribune, and James H. Beale, jr., late of the Boston Post, have purchased the Richmond Enquirer, and will issue the first number under new management to-morrow, as a conservative democratic paper.

English Items.

LONDON, October 25.—The Pall Mall Gazette's special from Bombay says that the Nizam of Hyderabad, after all, excuses himself from meeting the Prince of Wales. He pleads that he is too unwell to undergo the journey himself, but will send a deputation instead.

The Post says that the Russian commissioner at the American centennial has determined to limit the list of articles to be exhibited to Russian specialties, which are little known abroad. Nevertheless they are confident of making a creditable display.

The Royal Tourist.

CAIRO, October 25.—The Prince of Wales arrived here to-day, having disembarked from the Serapis at Ismalia.

Boiler Explosion.

ALTOONA, PA., October 25.—The boiler of the paper mill of Morrison, Baree & Co., at Roaring Springs, this morning exploded, completely destroying the mill, and seriously injuring ten men. Loss, $20,000.

Express Company Litigating.

PHILADELPHIA, October 25.—In the United States district court, in the case of Adams Express Company vs. Philadelphia and Reading Railroad company, a proceeding in equity to restrain the defendants from carrying on the express business, the court sustained a demurrer to the bill, upon the ground that it did not aver the express company or the stockholders who compose it to be citizens of a state other than Pennsylvania, an averment necessary to give this court jurisdiction of the case.

Col. Casey.

WASHINGTON, October 25.—There are abundant assurances that a special dispatch from St. Louis to the Cincinnati Gazette, which found its way into the associated press reports of the 21st, does Col. Casey, of New Orleans, an injustice. Col. Casey has no connection with the whisky trade at St. Louis or elsewhere.

Cattle Disease.

MILFORD, October 25.—A disease similar to epizootic is killing off cattle in several counties bordering on the Pennsylvania side of the Delaware river.

Failure.

MONTREAL, October 25.—W. Markland Maloin, of the Moisic iron works company, has failed. Liabilities estimated at $25,000.

The Virginia Agricultural Society.

RICHMOND, October 25.—The 15th annual exhibition of the state agricultural society opens to-morrow. The entries of live stock, agricultural implements, etc., up to this evening, already exceed those of any former fair since the war. The city is alive with visitors, and trains and other public conveyances are constantly bringing in large accessions from every direction, including military companies and war veterans, to take part in the programme at the unveiling of the Jackson statue to-morrow, which will undoubtedly be a big day in Richmond.

Anniversary of the Light Brigade.

LONDON, October.—Many of the survivors of the Balaklava charge of the light brigade celebrated the 21st anniversary of the battle to-day. About one hundred soldiers, with their families, sat down to a dinner generously provided by the directors of Alexandria palace company, at the palace at Muswell hill, a few miles out of the city.

United States Supreme Court.

WASHINGTON, October 25.—The supreme court to day decided the case of the Farmers', and Mechanics' national bank of Buffalo, against Peter C. Dearing. The New York court of appeals held that the agreement for the discount of a note above the legal interest in New York was corrupt and illegal, and that under the laws of that state the whole debt was forfeited, but this opinion the supreme court has reversed, to the effect that under the national bank law the plaintiff forfeited only the excess of the legal rate of interest.

In the supreme court McLemore vs. the Louisiana state bank, error to the circuit court for the district of Louisiana. In this case the plaintiff was the owner of certain securities, which were, in 1861, pledged to the bank for collateral to a loan. The loan was not paid at maturity, and the collaterals remained in the possession of the bank until it was put into liquidation by Gen. Banks and its effects transferred to military commissioners appointed to close it up. These officers sold the pledged paper for less than its face. The court held that the plaintiff cannot make the bank responsible for the acts of the commissioners, for no act was done, or omitted to be done, by the bank inconsistent with its duty. The bank has shown good reason why it does not return the pledges, by showing that they were taken from it by superior force, against its will and protest, and if loss has come upon the plaintiff the bank is not to be blamed for it. Affirmed.

Mr. Justice Davis delivered the opinion.

Matthews vs. McStea, error to the court of appeals of New York. This was an action upon the acceptance of a bill of exchange by the firm of Brander, Chambliss & Co. of New Orleans, it being alleged that Matthews, living in New York, was at the time of the acceptance a member of that firm. The only question was whether the partnership existed at the date of the acceptance, April 23rd, 1861, the war being then began. The court held that although war existed at the date of the acceptance, still as it had not been declared or publicly recognized by the president, it did not have the effect to work a dissolution of a partnership in New York, and others in New Orleans. The proclamation of April 15, 1861, is not regarded as a distinct recognition of an existing state of war; nor yet is that of the 19th of April, which announced the blockade. The reference to the people of Louisiana in these cases is to, "Citizens of the insurrectionary states," and in the judgment of the court, the purpose avowed by the president is inconsistent with their being regarded as public enemies. Affirmed. Justice Strong delivered opinion.

Supreme court: Willmington and Weldon railroad company against King, executor. Error to the supreme court of North Carolina. In this case, the road contracted for wood to be paid for in confederate currency, and the question was: first, whether the contract was valid; and, second, if so, what should be the scale of payment. The court held that contracts thus payable, and not designated in their origin, to aid the insurrectionary government, were not valid between the parties, and will be sustained; and that the true measure of value should be the value of confederate currency at the date of the contract. Mr. Justice Field delivered the opinion, and Mr. Justice Bradley dissented.

Semmes vs. United States. Error to the circuit court for the district of Louisiana. This was an action to recover certain property, which was confiscated on the ground of alleged irregularities in the proceeding, and upon the suggestion of a portion by the president. The court here sustains the proceeding in confiscation, and hold in substance that the portion cannot restore rights to property seized, condemned and sold in the exercise of sovereign and belligerent rights. Affirmed.

Mr. Justice Clifford delivered the opinion.

DIRECTORY
For 1876.

WANTED!

THREE or four more competent men—those who have had experience preferred, to canvass for the Atlanta, West End, Marietta, Stone Mountain and Decatur General and Business Directory for 1876.

Stands Alone.

As articles in the preparing of various kinds of food Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder and True Flavoring Extracts are wholesome as the ingredients that enter into their composition are free from all substances that would render them detrimental to health. In these respects they stand alone. Who can tell how many invalids and tender children have fallen victims to the dangerous adulterations practiced upon food? The public should obtain articles that are only delicious but healthful, as are Dr. Price's Baking Powder and Flavoring Extracts. oct23—dss-su-tu-th&wlt

A Popular Establishment.

Whitehall street, on a Saturday evening presents a brilliant appearance, the multitudious stores being ablaze with light for the purpose of displaying their finery. Among the most attractive of all the establishment's on this popular thoroughfare is that of Eiseman Brothers. Its elegantly finished salesrooms are unsurpassed by any in the south, and the stock of goods exhibited by them is in no wise inferior to the largest clothing house in the country.

There is little wonder then, that the rooms are continually crowded with buyers, for there is every inducement offered to those wishing to purchase suits or clothing of any description to make their investment there. In the first place the surroundings being beautiful, it at once suggests itself that it is more than probable, that the cut of garments found in such a place will be in keeping, that is, as stylish as the store, then too the great variety insures beyond peradventure, perfect satisfaction on every score—material, style or price. To all who wish to fit out for the fall, we would advise to examine the extensive stock of those popular clothiers, and our word for it, they will find it a profitable visit.

RAILROAD FREIGHTS.

Gov. Brown's Reply.

MR. EDITOR:—Noticing the reply of Gov. Brown, in your Tuesday's issue, to Mr. Herring, we are induced to make a few remarks. From Gov. Brown's article, we are led to believe that he, and the railroad pool, suppose that Mr. Inman and Mr. Herring, and other cotton commission merchants, are the only parties who complain of the pool. We wish to disabuse his mind on that subject. Every merchant, and shipper of freight, have reason to complain of the exorbitant charges made by the pool convention, of freights from eastern cities. We, as merchants, contend that 1.70, on first-class freight, is too much, and more than is charged to any other point. It may be very convenient for Gov. Brown to be a fast friend of the pool system, especially as president of the pool convention. When his connecting line is outside of the pool, by this arrangement, it seems to us, that he can be on the fence—forcing other competing lines to pro rata. While his route agrees to maintain rates, the agent of his line here, told the writer where they could bring freight from New York to Atlanta, at one dollar per hundred. And Mr. Magrath also told the writer that he would want no better business than to carry freights at one dollar and thirty cents per hundred. Gov. Brown's route, you will see, pockets the whole of one seventy per hundred, while this pool, of which he is president, compells his competitors to share the one dollar and seventy cents per hundred, with five or six other routes. We contend that the rates charged by Atlanta which the railroad pool are trying to force on us, is too high, and is a direct blow at the prosperity of our city. He may try to make the public believe that Mr. Inman and Mr. Herring pocket the rebate, but, as merchants, we think if they get their cotton shipped cheaper than their competitors they are enabled to charge the planter less commissions, whereby they are enabled to increase their business. We do not believe that the strong railroads are bound to help the weak ones, as the pool contend. If a merchant starts in business with no capital in this city, and tries to compete with others who have facilities and capital, is it a business rule for the stronger party to sell their goods high because the weak party cannot sell at the lower prices? Why should the railroad business be conducted on a different principle?

As shippers of freight, we are opposed to the pool, and if any route from eastern cities to this point will act independent of the pool rates, they will soon find, if the pool is popular with all shippers, be they commission merchants or others doing a regular business.

Fine Photographs.

Visitors to the art gallery in Floral hall cannot fail to be attracted by the beautiful display of photographic pictures exhibited by Messrs. Smith & Motes, of Atlanta. These pictures possess a distinctiveness of outline, a clearness of expression, and a softness which is accomplished by very few artists. In producing this exquisite finish the artists still preserve the correctness of the likeness and all other requisites of satisfactory representation of the "human face divine." Messrs. Smith & Motes are the equals of any photographic artists in the country. New York produces no better pictures and we are doubtful if the photographer's art is capable of any better efforts than they produce.—[Macon Telegraph.

The captain of the Washington light artillery has formally accepted the gun.

THE STATE FAIR.

Some Interesting Points Suggested by President Colquitt.

The Recent Fair a Grander Success Than any for Years Past.

The recent exhibition of the state agricultural society at Macon has been made the subject of no small amount of criticism and quite a number of harsh judgments have been uttered against the management. One of the principal causes for some of these unkind reflections is found in the refusal of the officers and executive committee to prevent horse racing and other questionably proper sports. THE CONSTITUTION, in its last issue, gave its judgment upon the exhibition, and noted some of the palpable causes preventing a more numerous attendance and general display.

Yesterday a reporter of this journal met General Alfred H. Colquitt, the president of the society, and in the course of conversation mentioned the above matters.

WHAT GEN. COLQUITT SAYS.

REPORTER.—Well, General, you seem to have had quite a critical gathering at the fair?

GEN COLQUITT.—Yes, sir; to rather an unusual extent, I think. There has been a great deal of harsh and uncalled-for criticism of the fair, and a great many misstatements, by which the public has been misled. Perhaps such an amount of grumbling and abuse and personal vilification has never before been heard on such an occasion. The fact of our excluding horse racing has been made the cause of much of this trouble, and the persons who abuse and curse us for it do not stop to think that the executive committee is composed of twenty-five as good and influential men as there are in the state, and are supposed to represent very fully the wishes of their sections in all matters connected with the fair.

THE ATTENDANCE

REPORTER.—Can you trace any deficiency in the attendance to this cause?

GEN. C.—No, sir; I cannot think of any circumstance that would point that way. And I may say that the matter of the attendance upon the fair has been very sadly misstated in various quarters. Now, take the leading day, Thursday, as an instance. In quite a number of papers it is stated that the crowd on that day was about 5,000. The truth is that we had held three days, and all the season and complimentary tickets that had gone out before, and all the commutation tickets sold at less than regular prices to schools, factory employees, and others who came in a body, had to be included in the estimate that day. And, now, in addition to them we sold about nine thousand new tickets on that day, and I do not think the crowd present could have been less than 12,000 people.

THE RACING QUESTION.

REPORTER.—Why should such faulty estimates have been made?

GEN. C.—They were put out to make it appear that the whole thing was a failure, and to reflect personally upon myself and others. It must be recollected that the fair is a state institution, is chartered by the state, and supported in part by a small appropriation, gotten with difficulty from the state, and its purpose is to educate the people and improve our industries, in its peculiar direction quite as much as the college at Athens.

But, because we don't have horse-racing and other sporting features, every "turtle, and jockey, and stable-boy and inmate of a gambling shop becomes a propagandist of this abuse and slander against the society and myself. We had many applications and could have added a great sum of money to the resources of the society by selling books and stands to gamblers and admitting them to the grounds. But they had to stand outside and they, with their abettors, vented their spite by crying out "walk in gentlemen, to the prayer meeting!" and other such phrases. We tried to make such an exhibition that the most modest girl in the land could attend and see nothing to make her blush, and are satisfied in knowing that we did this.

ABOUT THE EXPENSES.

REPORTER.—I suppose hard times and the lack of money made you forego preparations?

GEN. C.—As a matter of course. We knew the people had very little money to spend, and that we could not afford to waste a dollar. Under previous managements the expenses had been enormous and the people down there were not disposed to be taxed to such extent again. When I went down there to arrange for the fair I met some of the leading citizens of Macon. They asked me what I proposed to do. I said I would first see how much the city would do, when they told me that if it was attempted to connect the city again with the fair, they would slap an injunction upon the proceeding at once and stop it. We were thereupon thrown upon our own resources. We had to be prudent and cautious, as all expense was upon us. And if we had come out behind, to whom would we have gone for money with which to meet our obligations?

THE FAIR MADE MONEY.

REPORTER.—Well, General, that's a conundrum without an answer; but am I to understand that the fair was a financial success?

GEN. C.—Yes, sir! Our proceeds will close out everything—will pay every dollar of expense incurred, and the society will have something left in its treasury. In this respect the fair has been a better success than we have had for years past.

From our receipts we can pay every dollar and not leave a solitary item behind us.

RACING A LOSING BUSINESS.

REPORTER.—What effect would the racing, if permitted have had upon your finances?

GEN. C.—It would have resulted in loss. You see it would have taken about $3,000 for premiums, or purses, to the race horses and other consequent expenses, and to have gotten that additional amount we would have needed thousands more visitors. Now, where were they to come from? And who will say that the races would have brought them? The state fair of Alabama, soon to be held at Selma, and to which I have been invited, has no more of a horse show than we had, and never have had horse-racing connected with their fair. Gen. Alpheus Baker, of Alabama, said to me: "This is one of the grandest triumphs I have ever seen in the way of a fair, and I congratulate you upon the result. I have heard these sneers and slurs about the racing and other matters, and I give you the assurance that I intend to let the Alabama people know of your success in this movement." And numbers of such remarks were made to me by the most intelligent and influential men, Yet, if I had opened the grounds to faro banks, card houses and every other species of immorality, I should not have been more than censured than I have been grossly and unjustly attacked for not permitting horse racing.

General Colquitt then mentioned various incidents connected with the fair which we have not room to detail, but which were pleasant evidences of appreciation for the work of the society.

Another pleasing feature was the fact that when the premiums were distributed, every exhibitor who received a check was able to present it to the treasurer and receive his money at once. Both the above facts will be found notable in the history of our fairs, and are by no means the shortest feathers in the cap of the society.

ATHENS, GA., Oct. 24, 1875.

Your reporter feels more than usually inclined to say something about Athens, and if he should become very entusiastic you can attribute it to his success, here in the way of getting subscribers and renewing of subscriptions, for we did fear that some would discontinue, on account of the appearance of the sprightly little sheet, the Athens Daily Georgian. I take this occasion to compliment the

The merchants here tell me that the outlook for business this fall is better than at any time since the war.

The buildings that are being erected are proof of the prosperity of the city and surrounding country.

On yesterday we took a stroll through

COBBHAM.

This portion of the city, ornamented with splendid dwellings, rather on the European style, and, with a waving forest, presents a scene of beauty.

We learn that the colleges are almost if not quite as flourishing as last year, all things considered.

One of the professors informs me that only 75 students have registered up to this time. This time last year more than 100 were registered (this is in the agricultural department.) However he thinks this is owing to the falling off of the cotton crop, both Quantity and price.

The trustees met October 14, and accepted Dr. Broun's resignation, and elected Prof. Montgomery Cumming, son of Dr. Henry Cumming, of Georgia. Prof. Cumming was, at the time of his election, one of the professors in a college at Toronto, Canada. Athens will soon welcome who comes with an independent fortune in specie payment funds.

These are facts. The writer is a relative of this fortunate man.

I have before me a letter from Mr. Dorsey to his relatives here in Athens, also a paper published in San Francisco, from which I gather the following facts: "Mr. Dorsey, who is an old pioneer of the territory, and one of the tried and true fellows who deserves the luck which has opened a fortune to them, was prospecting in the Pinal mountains 35 miles north of Florence. While working in the bottom of a ravine, he made a stroke into the loose earth with his pick, and struck something into which his pick stuck fast. Further examination resulted in unearthing a lump of silver ore weighing 34 pounds. It is almost pure silver, assaying $12.00 to the pound, or three fourths pure silver. The specimen was sent to Hooper & Co. by the discoverer, Mr. A. N. Dorsey, and brought to the city by Gov. Safford.

This wonderful discovery is about one mile south of the celebrated silver ring lode, which is also very rich in similar specimens of metal. 200 pounds of ore from that mine was selected, and when reduced yielded 94 pounds of pure silver.

We also, copy the following from the San Francisco "Alta."

"A telegram was received yesterday from Arizona, by Wm. B. Hooper & Co. of this city, informing them that Dorsey & Brown had taken out of the Athens mine during the past five days, $20,000 in silver. We noticed this wonderful mine yesterday, specimen of which we saw at the office of Hooper & Co.

"After working this mine more than one month, taking out from fifteen hundred to two thousand dollars per day, Mr. Dorsey has sold his interest for more than an independent fortune."

He is to receive his last payment October 30, and is expected at Athens before the middle of December.

The Clark Edmonson Matter.

BROOKE STATION, FAYETTE CO., GA., }
October 22, 1875. }

EDITORS CONSTITUTION:—I see an article in the issue of October 17, in which J. O. Hightower, sheriff of Clayton county, said that he had examined into the Clark Edmonson rape matter fully, and had conversed with many parties about it. The result of his inquiries was, that the statement made by the negro and published in THE CONSTITUTION was substantially true. Well, who could he have enquired of? It could not have been of any respectable white citizen of Fayette who was acquainted with Mrs. Kenedy or her character. I have known her and the negro both, from their infancy up, and I never heard aught against her character before, and I have not the remotest idea that Hightower, or his friend, the prominent citizen of Jonesboro, could come into the settlement where Mrs. Kenedy was born and raised, and find a respectable white or black citizen who would state that they knew aught against her chastity, save the nasty, possibly and probably low and degraded scoundrel, whose heart is as black as the skin of the negro who committed the crime, who would venture to make such an assertion with the hope of being rewarded, and nothing else.

Now, as to the negro, he possessed one good trait among both white and black, and that was, he was a good hand to labor. Outside of that he was an outrageous negro—a terror to all virtuous women who knew him, both white and black. He bore a very bad name. He has been seen lurking about other white people's houses in a suspicious manner. In fact, he was a terror to all white women who knew him well. These are about the facts in the case, and if you see proper, you can give the public this letter through your columns.

Very respectfully yours,

F. S. M.

"A Rough Deal."

Under the above heading, in last Sunday's issue, we called attention to the garnishment by a physician of this city of a laborer's wages, for a medical bill of $12 for a single visit. We are further informed that the visit was a consultation visit, with attending physicians, the minimum charge for which is $10; that there was an additional visit on the following day, for which $1 was charged—this being $1 less than is charged per visit by a number of the leading physicians of the city. The reason why the garnishment was made, was because the gentleman whose family had the services, refused positively to pay anything, stating that he owed the Dr. nothing and would pay nothing.

In justice to the medical profession of the city, and to all parties concerned, we feel called upon to say this much, which puts quite a different face upon the matter.

Rumored Railroad Changes.

The following is rumored to be the slate for the Richmond and Danville railroad to go into effect on the first prox: Col A S Buford, president; Gen H Haupt, vice president; Col T M Talcott, general manager; Capt W H Green, superintendent, of the Richmond and Danville division, (from Greensboro to Richmond.) Capt J. H. Andrews, as previously announced, becomes superintendent of the North Carolina division of this road.

It is stated, also, that at the time mentioned, one conductor and four baggage masters will be removed from the service: the baggage masters who remain on the road will run on the night trains, and the conductors of the day trains will have to attend to their own baggage.—Charlotte Observer.

The Granger Grist Mill.

We saw yesterday in operation at Winship's foundry, the new granger grist mill, of Witt, Smith & Co. It comes up fully to what the owners claim for it. The mill grinds over double the quantity with less than half the power, of the old style mills; it does not heat, and costs less. A mill that will grind fifty bushels per day, will cost only fifty dollars—and can be run by horse, steam, water or man power. These mills turn out a splendid article of meal, grits or hominy. Every farmer should raise his own corn and wheat, and with one of these mills, can save a handsome sum every year. No farmer should be without one.

State Librarian.

Yesterday the resignation of Dr. Joel Branham, as state librarian, was presented to and accepted by Governor Smith. The Dr. is in very bad health, and it is supposed will hereafter devote himself to more active pursuits. The position thus made vacant, was tendered to our young and accomplished friend, James Banks, esq., of this city, and by him accepted. We congratulate the new official, and feel satisfied of his proving both faithful and competent. He takes charge at once.

A pleasant social reunion took place last night at the residence of Rev. W. A Dodge, pastor of St. Paul's Methodist church, corner of Bell and Fair streets. THE NIGHT MURDER.

The Coroner's Inquest on Sunday and the Verdict of the Jury.

Hughes and Hollifield in Jail, and What They Say about the Killing.

In THE CONSTITUTION'S report of the tragedy which occurred on Saturday night, it was stated that the coroner's inquest would be held on Sunday morning at 9 o'clock. At that hour a reporter of THE CONSTITUTION reached the house of the deceased, being a common plank house of one room, whitewashed upon the outside, and situated off from the public road a little way, inside a paling fence. Quite a crowd was present, and the house was literally packed with people who had come to gratify their curiosity and hear the result of the investigation.

WILMOTH'S BODY

was lying in the center of the room, upon planks laid between two chairs. It had been washed and dressed in clean underclothing, ready for his grave clothes as soon as the inquest was over. Upon the bed was resting a very neat coffin to receive the body. The neck of deceased was exposed, and the deep, gaping gash was plainly shown. It was not so long as it had appeared before being washed, but still was a frightful looking wound. The wound in the head was visible, and was a direct stab.

THE INQUEST

was held by Coroner Wm. Kile, assisted by W. R. D. Thompson, M. D., and the following jury of citizens:

J. C. McCreary, B. N. Matthews, R. Nagle, P. R. Collier, H. H. Wells, T. C. Wilson, J. D. Kandfield, J. N. Knight, W. W. Roberts, D. H. Heath, E. H. Letchworth, and J. L. McLellion.

Dr. Thompson examined the wounds upon the person of Wilmoth and said they had been inflicted with a sharp instrument, as a knife; that the wound in the throat had severed the jugular vein, carotid artery and pneumo-gastric nerve, and was necessarily fatal.

THE BROTHER'S STORY.

Steve Wilmoth, brother of the deceased, and his companion at the time of the killing, was introduced before the jury and said:

We were all coming out from town on Saturday evening about dark, and were stopping at the crossing. We got to talking about some old trouble between me and Bud Hughes, and he said he had cut me once before about it, and would cut me again. I said to him to try it, and he jumped down out of Hollifield's wagon and ran up to our wagon. He struck at me with a knife and cut brother in the head. Brother started to get out of the wagon to him, and Hollifield ran up and cut him in the neck.

CORONER KILE—You say Hughes cut your brother in the head?

WILMOTH—Yes, sir; Hughes cut him in the head and Hollifield cut him in the neck.

CORONER KILE—How long had there been trouble between you and Hughes?

WILMOTH—There had been something between us three or four years.

CORONER KILE—Who was there when the cutting was done?

WILMOTH—Bud Dunaway was in the wagon with them, but jumped out and ran away. He didn't have anything to do with it. There was nobody else there but us four. John had words with Jim. John went to get down on the wagon wheel when Hughes got off his wagon and ran around and cut him. He struck at me and hit John. Then Hollifield ran up and cut John. Then they got on their wagon and drove away.

CORONER KILE—How long did your brother live after he was cut?

WILMOTH—About fifteen or twenty minutes. He died in my arms.

CORONER KILE—What did he say?

WILMOTH—He told me good bye and to tell a l good bye for him, and for me to take his gun and dogs and take care of them as long as I lived.

No other witness was examined and no other facts adduced. The jury were sent out to make up their verdict, which was shortly after rendered as follows:

VERDICT OF THE JURY.

FULTON COUNTY, October 25, 1875.

We, the jury of inquest, summoned by Coroner Wm. Kile to examine the body of John Wilmoth, deceased, do, after a satisfactory post-mortem examination made in our presence by W. R. D. Thompson, M. D., agree that Wilmoth came to his death by wounds received in his head and throat, made by knives used on his person by James Hughes and George Hollifield, in the county of Fulton, on the night of the 24th of October, 1875.

(Signed.) JOHN C. MCCREARY,
Foreman,
And the jury by names.

To this finding was attached the following certificate:

"I do certify that on examination of the body of John Wilmoth, I found an extensive cut in his head and one incision in the left side of his throat, about three inches long and sufficiently deep to sever the jugular vein, carotid artery, and accompanying nerve, and that was calculated to produce immediate death."

(Signed.) "W. R. D. THOMPSON, M. D."

Sheriff Perkerson was present and stated that Hughes and Hollifield were both in jail.

The family of deceased were greatly distressed, and wept incessantly. His wife stood not far off, in the yard of the father's house, uttering such cries of anguish as to move all hearts with pity.

The scene at the tragedy and the remains of the deceased were visited by a great crowd of people throughout the entire day.

ARREST OF THE PARTIES.

Sunday morning Hughes was arrested by Sheriff Perkerson. He was found walking about in the street near his father-in-law's place, some distance within the city limits. He made no effort to escape, further than elude arrest until morning. He came into town with Hollifield upon the same wagon in which they were on Saturday night, getting off at his father in-law's to await the return of Hollifield, who went to deliver his milk and show the succeeding where to find the regular customers. Both then intended to surrender. Hughes was arrested as stated and Hollifield, while on Alabama street, was approached by police officers to whom he surrendered, and was told by them that he did not know really to whom it was proper to give himself in charge. Both men were taken to Fulton county jail to await the result of the investigations to be held.

THE CONFESSION OF HUGHES.

Immediately after the termination of the inquest the reporter of THE CONSTITUTION called to see Hughes at the jail. He was found to be a young man of short stature, dark complexion, rather medium size, quick in speech and action. He was born in South Carolina, 1823 years of age, has lived in Atlanta for six years, has a wife and three children, and is a carpenter by trade. He talked freely and made the following statement.

"Yesterday evening, just after dark, I was going out home from town in the milk wagon driven by George Hollifield. A boy named Dunnaway was with us. We had gone as far as Gunby's crossing where we overtook a beef wagon in which were John and Steve Wilmoth, and I think another person. Hollifield and I got out and bought meat. We drove rather alongside for a piece, when they got across the track, so that we could not well go on, when Hollifield said to them to drive on or let him pass. One of them said 'go to h—l, you ——— ——— Hollifield drove around and on, when Bud Dunnaway said he was about to fall out, when we stopped a moment to let him fix himself. Just then both the Wilmoths jumped off their wagon and came up to the one we were on. One of them said, 'You've killed me G—d—d, you ——— John, I think, who repeated, 'Yes, you've told me G—d—d lies, George Hollifield! Who's that G—d—d ——— ——— you've got there with you?' I said, 'How are you, John; don't you know me?' He replied, 'Yes, I do, and damn you, I'm going to kill you both right now! This is just as good a time as any, and we've both got pistols and are fixed for you.' I said to them to go away and let us alone, that I was in a hurry as it was late, and didn't want any trouble. I saw they were drunk, and I knew their character well enough to fear serious trouble if we should have any at all. John was on the left side next to me and Steve on the right. John caught hold of me and tried to pull me out of the wagon, but Hollifield held me in. Dunnaway jumped out and ran off a piece. I again said, 'John, turn me loose and let me go home. I have never bothered you and don't want any trouble now.' He cursed and swore that I would have to come out and they would kill me. I heard something like the click of a pistol, and while struggling to get loose I expected every second to be shot. It knew that if they got me off the wagon I would be killed, so I pulled my pocket knife and began to cut at them as hard as I could. They turned me loose then and I could hear the blood spouting from one of them. John; every moment. I heard him say Steve, throw my pistol away! He repeated this again as we drove off. I got out at home and stayed there all night. While the struggle was going on I received three cuts in my coat (one on right front and two in the left side of the back.) I had a difficulty with Steve once four years ago, but that was all settled and we always passed as friends. I am sorry it happened, but all I did was to protect my life which I thought was in great danger."

HOLLIFIELD CORROBORATES.

George Hollifield was called in and made a statement not materially different from the above. Hollifield is also of medium stature, is 21 years of age, and was born in Clarksville of this state, but has lived in Atlanta for twelve years. He does not appear embarrassed by his situation further than the trouble to be gone through with in the trial, as he is confident that he can prove his innocence of any crime. He says he never had any trouble with the Wilmoth's and that he never submitted to such abuse, and begged so hard to avoid a difficulty as on Saturday night.

Hughes has two cuts in the back of his coat and one through the front of both coat and vest, which he says were made by John Wilmoth during the fight, while Hollifield has also a cut in his coat front which he claims was made by Steve at the same time. Hughes gave to sheriff Perkerson a common pocket knife as being the one with which he cut Wilmoth.

NO PRELIMINARY EXAMINATION

will be held. The grand jury impannelled for the present term of the superior court has not yet been discharged, although its session have been postponed until Thursday morning, and it is believed the matter will be called to its attention the first thing upon re-assembling. From all that can be gathered and the circumstances surrounding the case a strong impression is gaining ground that this was purley a case of self-defense.

THE COUNSEL

for the defense have already been engaged by the relations of both the parties charged with the crime, and are as follows: Gartrell & Stephens, Goodwin & McAfee, and Col. Hulsey.

The trial of the parties will most likely occur at the present term of our superior court.

THE BRINKLY CASE.

The Governor has Respited Brinkly for Four Weeks.

We learn that GOV. Smith yesterday respited Brinkly, condemned to be hanged on the 29th inst., for four weeks, being till November 26th. This was done because the jury of inquest into the sanity of the condemned had failed to agree and that all persons might be heard in the matter. We understand that Dr. Calhoun, of Newnan, and other physicians state that Brinkly is undoubtedly insane.

The Theater.

The play of the "Two Orphans" was rendered at DeGive's last night by Rose and Harry Watkins and company in fine style. There was a large and enthusiastic audience and for a first representation the piece went off smoothly enough. The company is a good one, and this excellent play will be repeated to-night.

Pay Your State and County Taxes.

We learn that under the recent tax act, passed by the legislature in January last, the state and county tax books will close throughout the state on the first of November. We call attention to our collector's advertisement in another column.

WE were honored yesterday by a visit from Mr. H. H. Parks, the traveling agent of that sturdy old stand-by of Georgia journalism, THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION. Athens Daily Georgian.

C. C. KETCHUM, so long and well known here, is located at No. 132 Gravier street, New Orleans, where, as general commission merchant, he will give special attention to the purchase of sugar and molasses.

THAT is quite a good joke on Charles A. Howell, of Duluth. He paid twenty-five cents to a newsboy to kiss a Whitehall street merchant, not knowing that the boy divided the spoils with him.

WAITING.

"Five years to wait!" Don't do it,
 My innocent, blue-eyed maid,
For the years may last a life time,
 While your youthful roses fade!
While your eyes are red with weeping,
 And watching the treacherous sea;
Till you sing the song of some one,
 "He never came back to me."

Five years to wait, while others
 Are dancing the dance of youth,
And the one, perhaps, you are trusting
 Is breaking his vows forsooth!
"I shall wait for my love, my darling,
 Who has sailed far over the sea,
Five years, or ten, or twenty,"
 Said the blue-eyed maid to me

So she wrote her lover letters,
 Or tended her garden flowers,
Or watched the restless billows
 On the beetling cliff for hours;
While she turned her suitors pining
 Away from the cottage door,
And waited, patiently waited,
 One long, long year or more.
* * * * * *
"Tis very weary waiting,"
 Said the blue-eyed maid to me,
And she glanced at her last new suitor
 And then at the restless sea;
And she glanced at the roses fading
 In her garden fair and bright;
Twice come, twice gone, since he left her
 Two years before that night.

And she married her last new suitor
 Before the winter sped;
And she wrote to her absent lover
 On the day that she was wed,
"She hoped he would not suffer,
 That the shock would soon be o'er;"
And the answer soon informed her
 He had married a year before!

BREVITIES

—Snow—cutter—bells—girls—left arm around her—ah! don't mention it.—Free Press.

—Joe Jefferson once thought of settling in his business at Macon, Georgia, in the flush of old times.

—The intricity of the back drapery of ladies' fall suits is compared to the intricity of a chancery suit.

—One Chapin of Michigan claims to be 105 years old, and it may at least be said that he is the oldest Chapin his locality.

—"That clock, stranger," said a Michigan farmer, "was the best kind of a clock up to six months ago, when my daughter began to have beaux, and now the blamed thing is always two hours slow?

—Gathering frogs' legs is getting to be a business in its way. A dealer at Hudson, N. Y., caught 1,600 pounds of dressed frogs in one week, for which he got 30 cents a pound in the New York market, 28 cents being clear profit.

—Mr. Spurgeon is said to have a wonderful memory for names and faces. At the close of his Sunday services he steps out of his pulpit to the side of the door where his congregation pass out, and shakes hands with the members, calling each by name and inquiring after the families.

—"If a fellow hasn't a right to kiss own wife, whose wife has he a right to kiss?" said a young fellow to his spouse, who objected to having her laces mussed just as the couple were going out to a party. "The fellow knows better than I do," said the wife.

—At the marriage of Senator Frelinghuysen's daughter to a son of the Hon. Bancroft Davis, American minister at Berlin, a weary wait for the wedding party was filled in by the organist rendering "Oh, what can the matter be." Much merriment was created by the circumstances.

—A French scientist has invented a new fish bait. A bottle is lowered into the water and lighted by electricity, and the fish are to follow it into a net. But this is a method already employed in the open air over in New Jersey. One or two bottles of Jersey lightning will draw a whole primary meeting.

—Send her to the centennial by all means. Mrs. Case, of Shoals, Indiana, during the course of a single week knocked one tramp down, broke a rib for another, shot at a third, and kicked a fourth so vigorously that he had to go into a hospital.

—Died, at St. Louis yesterday, at the ripe age of thirty-six years, Jack Rossiter, once famous trotting horse, who outlived the popular remembrance of his achievements. The paths, even of equine glory, leads but to the grave; but sometimes it takes them a great while. Flora Temple is now in her thirty-first year.

—"Maister," said an old Scotch servant, "whether is't gude manners to tak' a drap or drink aff the haill o't?" The master having, in homely Scotch phrase, judiciously replied to this poser that the courtesy consisted in imbibing the whole, the man exclaimed, with a sigh of relief: "Then, Gude be thanked, I was mannerly!"

—"Did you ever brake a yoke of four year old steers?" asked a Rock county farmer of a young Janesville chap who wanted to marry his daughter. "No, I never did," was the meek reply; "but I have rode a mule in a circus, and had a good deal of other experience in the world," "No other experience," said the granger, "could qualify you, young man, for trying to handle that girl," and the youth departed.—Milwaukee News.

—A youth was rushing around the corner, saying, "All I want in this world is to lay my hands on him!" He presently came upon a boy weighing about ten pounds more than himself, and rushing at him, he exclaimed: "Did you lick my brother Ben?" "Yes, I did," said the boy, dropping his bundle and spitting on his hands. "Well," continued the other lad, backing slowly away, "he needs a lickin' once a week to teach him to be civil!"

—John King, in 1862, lived in Tennessee. Soldiers of both armies raided on his farm. So he removed all his produce to a cave in the Cumberland mountain. A storm threw down a rock which closed the month of the caves Therein he lived for thirteen years in the dark, eating from his produce and drinking from a spring. The other day a railway company blasting for a tunnel blasted him out. So says a paper.

—Teresa Titiens has a good time in New York on those evenings when she does not sing. She visits the theatres in turn appearing conspicuously in the boxes. Her eyes are gray and slightly prominent, her mouth curved and firm, and her abundant hair of dark brown, dressed a la Pompadour, gives her the appearance of being taller than she really is. Her manner is dignified and suave, and a foreign accent betrays itself but rarely in her speech. Titiens is credited with forty-one years in the encyclopedia.

—Eggs are now plenty, but Christmas is coming and they will then be scarce and high. Every one who has plenty of laying hens should preserve the eggs for the scarce season. This may be done by several methods, but the French Journal de Pharmacie says that, after many scientific experiments the best and readiest method of preserving eggs for a month or two is to rub some vegetable oil—olive, rape seed, peanut, cotton seed or best linseed oil—on the egg, and laying carefully away until wanted. Castor oil would doubtless be the best of all, and though it would not affect the interior of the egg, would prove disgusting to many.

—The poets of India, native and European, have already begun to celebrate the Prince of Wales' visit to that country. Metrical compositions in his honor are of frequent occurrence in the newspapers. For instance, a Bengalee, who writes in English in a Bengal paper, sweetly sings as follows:

 Hail! hail! One hundred hails!
 To the mighty Prince of Wales!

and then proceeds to anticipate the feats which his Royal Highness will perform with his rifle:

 He will beautifully shoot
 Many a royal tiger brute;
 Turning on their backs they'll die,
 Shot in the apple of the eye!

Another loyal lord, who is also a native Christian of Madras, sings:

 Praise the Lord, my soul, O!
 Praise his name always!
 May He bless the Princess,
 And her husband Wales!

—"Griselda," the chatty correspondent of the Hartford Times, says in a recent letter: One of the feminine delights of this time of year in New York, is the glimpse one gets of bridal trousseaus. October is the month for weddings. The preparations for many of these interesting events are on the same scale of magnificence as though there was no depression in business circles. The news of the marriage of the widow of General Halleck to General Cullum almost took away the breath of Fifth and Madison avenues circles. Mrs. Halleck only recently returned from Europe to her handsome residence on Fifth avenue. She is very handsome and wealthy. She is a New Yorker by birth. General Cullum was a bachelor of seventy. The engagement of Marshal O. Roberts (seventy-four years old) to a lady forty years his junior, is also one of the sensations of the day.

How to Vanquish the Stomach's Tormentor.

If the Enemy of mankind was permitted to exert his diabolical ingenuity in the invention of a new disease, he could scarcely devise one more worthy of his genius than dyspepsia. The dyspeptic sufferer is tormented by symptoms resembling those of almost every known malady, and is often worried into monomania by these conflicting and perplexing manifestations of the victim of chronic indigestion is that he or she has heart disease. Dyspepsia has often been pronounced incurable, but experience has shown that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will vanquish it, together with the constipation and bilious derangement which usually accompany it. Diseases of the kidneys and supposed rheumatic pains are also frequent concomitants of dyspepsia, but they, too, succumb to the above named invaluable corrective. oct22—deod1w&w1t
